OUR OUTLOOK.

THE WOMAN VOTER in its first number announced the intention of the Woman Suffrage Party to try for a $10,000 campaign fund for the work of its first year. Careful plans had been made, and this amount was necessary to carry them through. The first year closes on January 1st. The report in this number represents the entire receipts for twelve months ($7,794.05) exclusive of subscriptions to THE WOMAN VOTER, sale of tickets for the luncheon (the total amount of which was paid out again to the hotel), or items of this character. The fund fell short of the amount aimed at by $2,209.95, and the plans of campaign fell short in proportional extent. We frankly confess to disappointment.

A man in business buys goods in proportion to his trade. His business grows as his patrons increase. If he is over optimistic, he buys too much and suffers financially; if he is over pessimistic, he buys too little and his profits are less than they might be. A reform organization moves in exactly the same way. It attempts to feel the pulse of public sentiment and to move in accordance with it. If it is not optimistic and venturesome the results are not as great as the times warrant; if it is over optimistic, financial stress is the result. The amount of money forthcoming to support a reform movement is as clearly indicative of the genuineness of demand for the establishment of that cause, as the buds in the springtime are the promises of the blossoms to come.

Although the Woman Suffrage Party overestimated the financial support probable in the past year, it feels justifiable pride in the result of its year's work, and its hopes for the coming year are undaunted. In no previous year could any suffrage organization in New York have raised as much money and expended it with such good results as did the Woman Suffrage Party in the year of 1910. If the support of the Cause is solid and dependable, as we fell sure it is, its campaign fund should be larger and its work broader for the year which lies before us.

It is important at this juncture that we should face our problem as it is. We should deceive ourselves about nothing. Woman Suffrage is bound to come, that every believer in it knows, but how and when? If the men of our State were actuated by a high sense of justice they would combine to grant the suffrage to women without an effort on our part, but no one expects them to do it. A hard method has been outlined for us by our Constitution; our bill must pass two Legislatures and later secure a majority of the votes at the polls. The investigation of the Woman Suffrage Party has given it a clearer and more exact knowledge of the status of the question than has been possible heretofore.

New York City has 63 Assembly Districts. If our question should be submitted to popular vote at this time, there is every reason to hope that 20 districts with further vigorous campaigning could be carried; 25 districts would as certainly be lost; and the remaining 13 would be doubtful. The 25 districts which may now be counted upon as opposed to Woman Suffrage are known as tenement-house districts. They are occupied mainly by foreign-speaking people and these represent almost every known nationality in the world. The families by the thousands in these districts are occupied in the lower ranks of labor. Education is limited and poverty unlimited in these districts. Here the sweat shops and contract factories are chiefly manned. Yet among these people are some of the choicest souls to be found in the world. Ambition, hope and a correct philosophy of life is to be found among them as certainly as among any other classes of people. From these districts there will come leaders of thought and movements for the future; and in no part of our city would the ballot be of more benefit than among these struggling people with their armies of working women. At present these districts are uneducated concerning our question.

An Assembly District is composed on an average of 10,000 voters, the number varying with the registration. In these 25 districts there are 250,000 voters. If the up-state counties should bring a goodly majority upon our amendment down to Harlem Bridge and if this majority was increased by that given in the 20 districts occupied by a more reading and intelligent public, and if the 13 doubtful districts could likewise be carried, the 250,000 votes of these 25 New York City districts would be sufficient to overturn it. This is a plain mathematical fact. There is no getting around it or reason to expect that some mysterious power will deliver these votes to us. The crucial point of the campaign of New York State plainly lies in these 25 districts How are we to approach them?

The Woman Suffrage Party is confident that they may be educated to believe in our Cause. Its confidence is based upon the experience of the past year. The organizers and educators best fitted to this work must reside within the district, speak the language of the people, belong to their own classes, and appeal to them in ways which they can understand. The only people obtainable to do this work are those who are self-supporting, and if their services are secured they must be paid. Even though the campaign relies upon unpaid work, places for meetings and the printing of notices and literature require money. We cannot expect contributions from these districts. We are confident no other organization can reach them so thoroughly and successfully as can the Woman Suffrage Party. We therefore appeal to the suffrage public and ask; is the demand for Woman Suffrage keen enough to support the only kind of campaign which can win in this state? Are the advocates of our cause sufficiently practical to provide the necessary funds for absolutely necessary work? We appeal to the public and must do more or less in strict accordance with the responses we receive.

The officers and many leaders of districts are doing conscientious, self-sacrificing, devoted, zealous work. So earnest are they that it is a pain to contemplate the certainty of an unsuccessful referendum when a larger and more generous support would insure victory.

Last year we asked for $10,000. Had we received it, our Cause would be to-day upon a much firmer basis in these 25 districts. To make up for that lost time and to fulfill the needs of this coming year, we ought to have $20,000. The money is in New York; we believe the interest is here. Is that interest sufficiently aroused and enlisted to join earnestly in the effort to secure suffrage in New York within the next four years? We are unable to answer.

In next month's issue of THE VOTER we start a new $10,000 fund. We do it in the hope that the $10,000 may be completed within six months and that we may really raise $20,000 in the year 1911, and expend it in the fields now white with the harvest. Will those who read reflect and act in accordance.

CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

UNIVERSAL PEACE

Andrew Carnegie has recently set aside a fund of ten million dollars, and dedicated it to the purpose of removing the barbarites of international war from the civilized world. Man is the fighting sex, and governments are composed of men. Had he devoted the immense fund to raising the women of the nations to that position of equality in government to which in justice they are entitled, we might hope for universal peace as a by-product. Mr. Carnegie is opposed to equal rights for women; and so are at least four of the first-named trustees of the fund: Elihu Root, who never fails to aid the anti-suffragists; Nicholas Murray Butler, who does the same; Charles W. Eliot, who protested against the opening of the Boston Latin School to girls; and Joseph H. Choate, who accomplished the defeat of woman suffrage in the Constitutional Convention of New York in 1894. The "glorious onward and upward ascent of man," to which Mr. Carnegie devotes his fund, has too often been made with man's foot on the neck of woman.

THE LEGISLATIVE MASS MEETINGS

The three mass meetings to be held in the Broadway Theatre on the afternoons of January 10 and 27 and February 24 at 3 o'clock are for the people, and free tickets with reserved seats may be had on application to headquarters; boxes are on sale. As the demand is great, those desiring tickets should apply early.

The subject of the meetings will be the submission of the Woman Suffrage Amendment to the people—the voters of the State, and will be discussed by prominent men and women.

The purpose of the meetings is to cement the relationship between the legislators of the State and the people whom they represent.

These meetings afford the legislators an excellent opportunity to learn how great is public sentiment in favor of woman suffrage. They also afford the public an opportunity to learn how their respresentatives stand and vote on the Woman Suffrage Amendment.

The lime-light of public opinion and scrutiny will be thrown upon the present standing of the Woman Suffrage Bill at each meeting and the record of each Legislator will be carried into his Assembly District and made known to the voters.

A grand jury in Ohio has indicted 622 men for buying or selling their votes. It is said they will be punished by disfranchisement for five or seven years. Thus for political crime men are placed in the political class of law-abiding women! It is a queer world.

Without doubt California will be the next State to grant suffrage to women. In Los Angeles a banquet was lately held attended by 400 guests and 40 members of the Legislature were present. The workers in the State are confident the Legislature of 1911 will submit the question to referendum. This will bring it to a vote in November, 1912. All hail to the sixth star.

The New York State Woman Suffrage Association has established legislative headquarters in Albany at The Gainsborough, 126 State Street. The room opens upon the street. Albany women will furnish it and an Albany woman will be in daily charge. It will be open throughout the session of the Legislature. Mrs. Roxana Burrows is Chairman of the Legislative Committee for the State and may be addressed at the new headquarters.

Governor Brady, of Idaho, has called a National Convention of enfranchised women with delegates from the five states that have given the ballot to women. It will be held in Tacoma, January 14. The call has been issued to the Governors of the various states, and each has appointed one or more delegates for the Convention. This is a splendid movement, and it is to be hoped that these women will form a national body of enfranchised women. The duty of such a body could well be to supply public information concerning the operation of Woman Suffrage in the United States.

WOMEN'S POLITICAL UNION

At headquarters and shop, 46 East 29th Street, the Union will conduct a series of "At Homes" from four to six o'clock every Sunday.

Friday, January 13. Political address and discussion.

Tuesdays, 8 P. M. Public speaking class.

January 6, 8 P. M. Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, at Carnegie Lyceum, under the auspices of the Union. Admission with reserved seat on sale at the shop and at the box-office. Admission tickets free on the day of the meeting.

OVERHEARD AT OPEN-AIR MEETINGS

"Would this mean that women would have a better chance at home?" demanded a man eagerly, of the woman who asked him to sign an enrollment blank.

"We hope so," was the answer. "All we are asking is for a square deal for women everywhere."

"I wish I could sign a thousand of them," said the man. "It is too late to help my mother, but I want to do everything I can to help other women so they won't have to stand what she did."

A hurdy gurdy was playing joyous tunes to help attract the crowd. A man was helping with that particular meeting and he engaged the organ grinder to take his stand alongside the suffrage soap box. It worked like magic, and it attracted grown-ups in far greater numbers than children, too.

It was at the corner of 84th and Broadway. The crowd was large and so respectful and attentive that the novice who was holding the Woman Suffrage Party banner was astonished. She was not prepared for this courteous attitude on the part of the listeners. She had supposed that some would scoff and sneer, some laugh, and others disturb the meeting with disconcerting questions. She had reckoned without the proverbial "good nature" of the American crowd or the air of proud proprietorship exhibited by the policeman who made the meeting his especial care. Presently her attention was attracted by a subdued but angry voice at her elbow demanding,

"Have they got a permit?"

A middle-aged man, whose clothes and cane and tortoise shell rimmed glasses all betokened fashion and prosperity, was the questioner. The six foot three policeman looked down on him indulgently and tried to soothe him with gentle words. The officer's assurance that they had a permit only made him angrier. He flounced away across the street. Directly he was back again and this time the novice with the banner saw him appeal, in an almost agonized way, to a well-dressed woman:

"You don't want to vote, do you?"

The woman answered coolly:

"I don't know whether I do or not, but I want to hear what she has to say about it," indicating the speaker mounted on a chair.

The man snorted (that is the only verb which expresses it, really) and again he dashed away. Two minutes later he was back again, still vehement, still angry, and accosting the same woman, he declared with much gesticulation, "What I say about this voting business is this: taxpayers ought to do the voting, taxpayers, tax-payers!"

And the novice with the banner murmured, "Out of the mouths of babes."

"Does your husband bring home his wages and give them to you on Saturday night?" asked the young woman speaker, directing her question to a group of bare-headed, resolute-faced, strong-armed housewives on the outskirts of the crowd.

"You bet! I'd break his neck if he didn't," was the cheerful rejoinder of one who had just been protesting that she was opposed to married women voting because they are weak and need the protection of their husbands.

COLLEGIATE EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE

The League has secured several speakers and entertainers for a series of meetings.

Miss Mary Phelps, an accomplished literary reader and interpreter, who has recently come to New York and who is a good suffragist, will give readings arranged from the story of the African Farm, which make very good suffrage propaganda. She is to give such a reading for the Collegiate League evening at the Political Equality League, 140 East 34th Street, on the evening of January 13th. Colonel Archibald Fisk, formerly of Colorado, and Mrs. Fisk, Borough Chairman for the Bronx, will talk upon Woman Suffrage.

On January 27th, under the same auspices, Mrs. Penfield, Vice-Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Party will speak. Also Miss Whitmore will read Kipling's, "The Ship That Found Herself." This will be a fine lesson in cooperation which ought to go home to the heart of every suffragist.

Other programs will be announced later.
